

The Card Huddle — Weekly Update

Week of May 29, 2026

Summary

This week I reorganized two core areas of the app — the Rainbow feature and Collections — to make them simpler and easier to find, and fixed a navigation bug that came out of the change.

What changed

Rainbow Mode now has its own tab

- Promoted Rainbow Mode to its own top-level tab in the main navigation, so it is easy to find on its own instead of being buried inside another menu.
- New flow: pick a product, then a player. The app then shows that player's card alongside a grid of every parallel/variant it comes in.
- Shows the corresponding card image next to the parallels so it is clear which card the "rainbow" belongs to.
- Kept all the existing features: tap to mark a parallel as owned, view recent sales for any parallel, and the Rainbow $? price estimate.

Collections simplified

- Reduced Collections to a single, focused Browse experience and removed the confusing secondary "Set Completion" mode — less clutter, clearer purpose.

Bug fix: Rainbow tab would not open

- After the changes, the Rainbow tab highlighted but did not open. Tracked it to a browser caching issue — visitors were still being served the previous version of the app file.
- Fixed by updating the version stamp so every browser automatically loads the latest version. Verified the full flow works end to end.

Status

All work is committed and pushed, and ready for review. No outstanding issues.